

THE FOAPLY

WEEKLY TIPS FOR MISSIONS

„Color: Red“

1. Exposure time. Red color might be difficult to capture without it looking blown-out, hence one of the popular techniques is to underexpose the image by manually reducing exposure time.
2. Examples. The best photos containing red color are usually found in portrait, food, abstraction, street and landscape photography, but we also suggest you to experiment. Just remember, that red evokes energy, passion and excitement!
3. Post edit. In case your camera wasn't able to capture the red color in a way that your eyes see it then you can always try post editing software. Play with saturation and color balance in order to find the sweet spot.

„Color: Brown“

1. Food photos. Some say that photos of brown colored food don't look interesting, but we don't agree! If you focus on texture and shoot the photos using interesting angles and hard light they will definitely look amazing.
2. The story. Various colors tell various stories and in case of brown color it can help strengthen the feeling of warmth, stability and sadness in your photos, so use it to your advantage.
3. Contrast. We think that the best way to capture a color is to have differently colored elements that create a contrast in the photo. We suggest you finding some objects that are white, copper, yellow, orange or blue to make your brown color look even better.

Bonus tips

1. "Collect your passions with Displates". Firstly make sure to use a lowest ISO when capturing artwork, to make your images look cleaner. If you are photographing using artificial light, place two identical lights at 45 degrees to each sides of the wall with your artwork(s) and in case you use natural light (e. g. window light) make sure to use a light diffuser. Most importantly, make sure to use original Displates which you can order here.
2. "NIVEA Breathable Body Lotion" and "Eucerin Itch Relief Intensive Calming Lotion". Most importantly, make sure to follow the DOs and DONTs of the Missions and you're halfway to winning!